

Burial Searches at Brompton Cemetery

Brompton Cemetery has over 205,000 burials with 35,000 memorials marking the final resting place of loved ones. With over 39 acres and burial books dating back to 1840, the staff at Brompton use their expertise and knowledge of the cemetery to pinpoint the locations of those interred.

I'm not sure if the person I'm looking for is buried at Brompton Cemetery?

You can start your search for free on our website listed below. Our burial registers are publicly accessible, and you can search with names and dates of death to find out if someone is buried in the cemetery.

If you proceed with a burial search with us, the search fee is non-refundable. It takes time for our staff to carry out searches, and the fee covers the staff admin time.

What are my alternatives?

Our burial registers up until 1997 are held by The National Archives, Kew, Richmond, Surrey, TW9 4DU, where the registers can be consulted for free. This will give you a location, and we are more than happy to provide a map with compartments listed for free.

The landscape at Brompton Cemetery is managed very carefully on a rotating management regime. This means that at different points during the year some compartments can be difficult to navigate. Please be aware if you leave the maintained pathways you do so at your own risk.

Memorials

Not all graves have memorials and are less so for 'common' or 'public' graves, these can be difficult to find. In the office, we can cross reference against other burials in the area to pinpoint the location of the grave.

Starting your burial search

Please fill in the Burial Search form and email across to bromptoncemetery@royalparks.org.uk once we have received the form and payment we will start your burial search.
