
Background

The Royal Parks are managed for the enjoyment of the public, balancing the interests of our visitors, wildlife, the historic environment and conservation. As pedestrians comprise the majority of visitors and include potentially vulnerable groups, such as small children and the elderly, they have priority in the parkland and open spaces. TRP seeks, however, to cater for wide range of other recreational activities in a way that does not interfere with the safety, comfort and convenience of other park users.

Skating is a popular activity that appeals to a wide range of people. TRP seeks to provide opportunities for skating in the Royal Parks for the enjoyment of skaters and without adverse impact on other park users and the park environment.

This policy concerns skating on what is described in the Park Regulations as “foot-propelled devices” – including roller blades, roller skates, freeline skates, roller-skis, skateboards/waveboards and scooters.

Regulations

The Royal Parks Regulations state that visitors:

- may skate on the roads, unless this is restricted by a park notice, and in any other area where permitted;
- must not skate in a manner that endangers or is likely to endanger any person;
- must comply with any direction for the control of skating that is given either by a constable, or by notice;
- must not intentionally or recklessly interfere with the safety, comfort or convenience of any person using a park

Where you may skate in the Royal Parks

Skaters may use park roads that are open to other vehicles, unless prohibited to do so. There are other areas of the parks where skating is permitted as follows:

Hyde Park – on the roads including Serpentine Road and on permitted cycle routes

Kensington Gardens – on the Albert Approach Road and on The Broad Walk

The Regent’s Park – on the roads including the Inner and Outer Circles

St James’s Park – on The Mall North Horsehide cycle track

Green Park – along Constitution Hill cycle track

Greenwich Park - on Great Cross Avenue and Bower Avenue

Richmond Park – between Sheen Gate and Ham Gate via Pen Ponds

Bushy Parks – on all paths

There is also a skating park managed by the London Borough of Richmond Upon Thames, located near Hampton Wick, within the bounds of Bushy Park.
